About the Artist:

Sarah Yeoman is an award-winning American watercolor artist and a signature member of the Philadelphia Water Color Society, the Pennsylvania Watercolor Society and the Delaware Watercolor Society. Her mastery of reflections, unique surface layers, and unusual perspective clearly sets her apart from the crowd.

Living in Delaware in the northeastern United States, she is recognized for her command of light, narrative and strength of story. In the summer, Sarah follows in Winslow Homer's footsteps in the Adirondack Mountains of New York State, hiking and paddling in remote locations where she paints and collects references. She is equally at home in urban and lush garden settings.

Sarah describes her artistic process as "sculpting and pulling the form out of the paper," much as a sculpture releases the form from the marble. Her imaginative and unusual perspective frames her work with the deepest ability to project how she sees the world, formed by shadow and light. As she minimizes detail, the abstract shapes and surface of the paper reveal her deep connection with the process. Visit her website to view her work and process: <https://www.sarahyeoman.com/>
